MOTIVATION

How to foster motivation in class

1. Choice and autonomy: When students have a say in what they learn and how they learn it, they are more likely to be invested in the process. By giving students choices and opportunities to make decisions about their learning, teachers can increase motivation and engagement.

ACTIVITY: Let's talk about motivation!

Instructions: Draw a map of your motivation sources. The map should include at least three different sources of motivation and can be illustrated using drawings, symbols, or words. For example, you might include family, friends, and personal goals as sources of motivation.

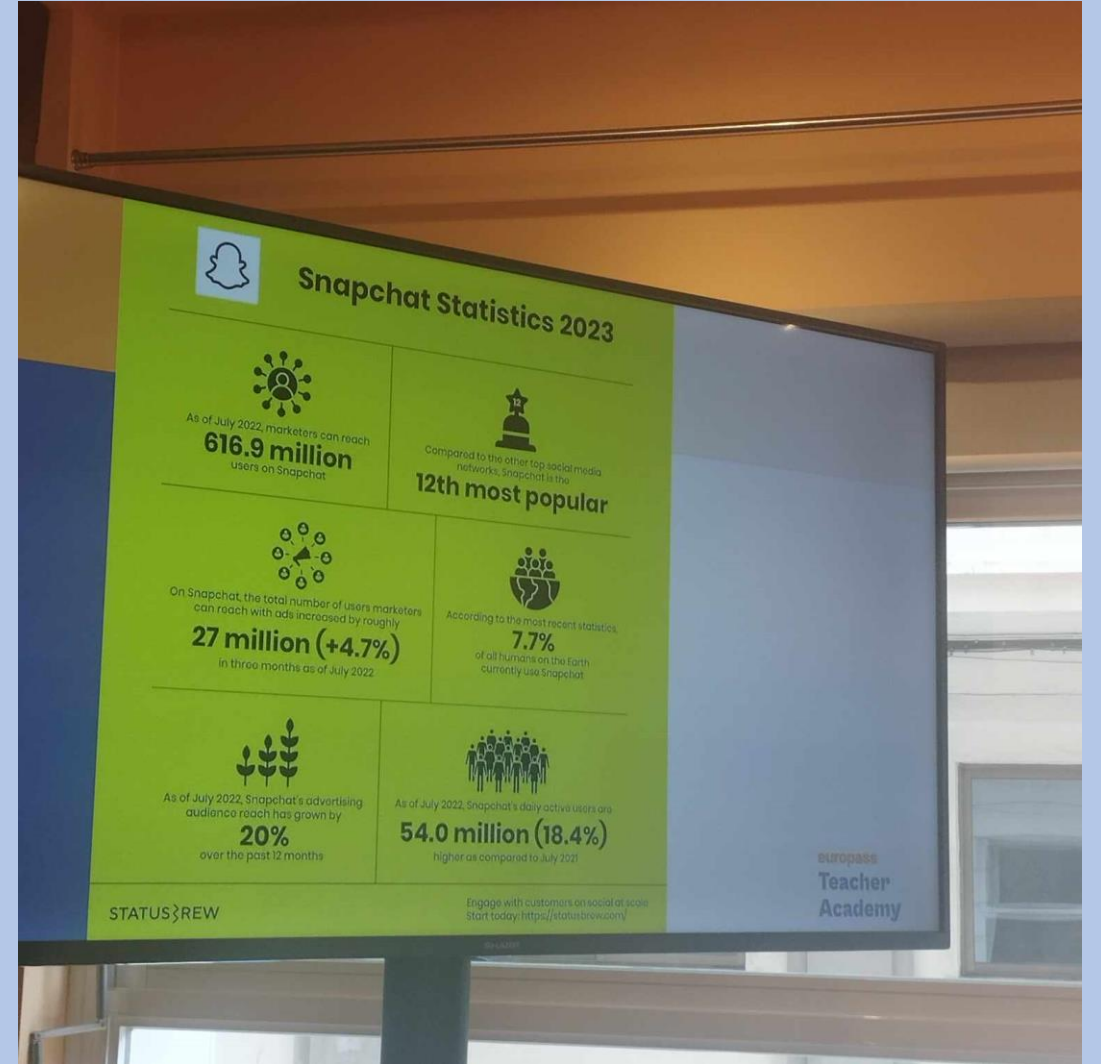

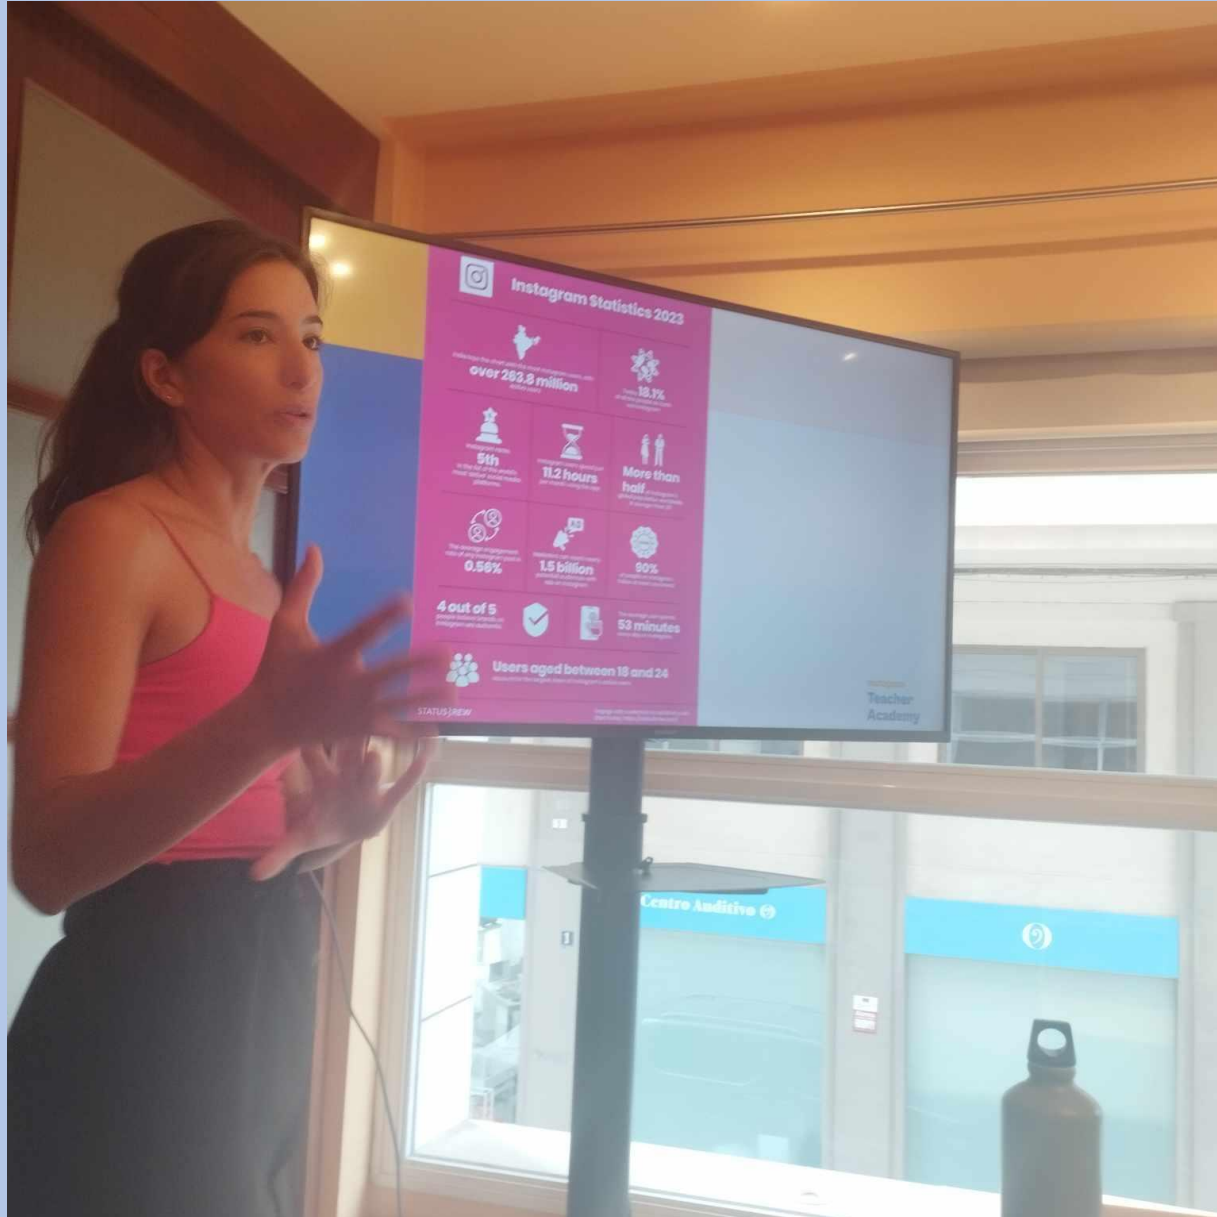

Objective: To help you (and your students) identify and understand their sources of motivation in order to better engage with learning tasks.
